MESSES

Steeped in a rich military heritage and tradition, messes have been used by the Canadian Forces (CF) throughout Canada's history to foster morale and promote military values including camaraderie and unit cohesiveness. Messes give members a strong sense of commitment to the ideas, objectives and the basic responsibility expected of them within the CF and set the standard for military service within Canada.

To this day, CF messes retain a functional role as social and dining clubs, and are the centre of social life for units, stations bases and ships. They enhance the esprit de corps of units, lighten the load of demanding day-to-day work, give commanders an opportunity to meet socially with their troops, and enable CF members of all ranks to create bonds of friendship and better working relations through an atmosphere of good fellowship.

MISSION AND VISION

Mission

Messes provide the environment for all CF members to promote the traditions and values of Canadian Forces duty. They promote courage, teamwork, discipline and honour. Messes serve to perpetuate the military ethos in the profession of arms and are an instrument of socialization to the members and their families. Messes foster morale in both peace and war.

Vision

Messes, universal in relevance, will be flexible and adaptive to their memberships and military communities' needs thus allowing all members to identify with the unique aspects of Canadian military life. Messes are recognized as an important and relevant part of their members' personal and professional lives. Messes are to be supported by all levels of CF leadership, and will be provided with public and non-public resources.

THE OSONS SUITE

The Special Service Force was established officially at the Canadian Forces Base Petawawa on 01 April 1977, amalgamating the Canadian Airborne Regiment previously stationed in Edmonton, Alberta and 2 Combat Group based in Petawawa and London, Ontario.

The Special Service Force constituted a unique chapter of Canada's military history. It derived its name from the First Special Service Force, a historic formation of Americans and Canadians – the Devil's Brigade of Hollywood fame – which pioneered Special Forces operations in a brief but immensely successful history during the Second World War (1942-1944). The latter day Special Service Force represented a compromise between the general purpose combat capabilities of a normal brigade and the strategic and tactical flexibility which derived from the lighter and more mobile capabilities of the Canadian Airborne Regiment. It also developed a character which set it apart from the other formations of the field force, one which was distinguished by the "warrior" ethos and a well-deserved reputation for maintaining the highest possible standards of fitness, resilience and basic soldiering skills. Though ultimately the Special Service Force readiness and deployability was never tested as formation, its units and soldiers served often and well in operations both at home and around the world. In keeping with the motto of the formation – OSONS (Let Us Dare!) – the members of the Special Service Force welcomed every challenge.

In its 18 year existence, the Special Service Force included the following units:

- 2nd Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery
- 1st Air Defence Regiment (Lanark & Renfrew) (from 1994)
 - 8th Canadian Hussars(Princess Louise's) (until 1987)
 - The Royal Canadian Dragoons (from 1987)
 - First Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment
 - Third Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment (from 1994)
 - Canadian Airborne Regiment
 - 2 Combat Engineer Regiment
- Special Service Force Headquarters and Signal Squadron
 - 2 Service Battalion
 - 2 Field Ambulance
 - 2 Military Police Platoon
- 427 Tactical Helicopter Squadron (OPCON from 10 Tactical Air Group)

The Special Service Force was officially redesignated as 2 Canadian Mechanized Brigade Group by a Ministerial Order signed on 24 April 1995. This decision and the associated reorganizing and re-equipping of the formation reflected the new emphasis in Canada's post –Cold War defence policy on general purpose capabilities. Though the Special Service Force era was short-lived, the OSONS spirit lives on today in 2 Canadian Mechanized Brigade Group, a valuable legacy and a central characteristic of the Petawawa military scene.

The OSONS Suite commemorates the Special Service Force and the superb soldiers who served in it.
